A COORDINATED EFFORT BY BREEDERS AND PROCESSORS TO IMPROVE WHEAT QUALITY

MEMO

TO: All Interested Parties
FROM: Dave Green, Wheat Quality Council
RE: 2022 Hard Spring and Durum Wheat Tour
DATE: May 25, 2022

This is your invitation to participate in the above wheat tour sponsored by the Wheat Quality Council. We are conducting two tours again this year—hard winter and hard spring and durum.

These tours are a tremendous learning experience for any new people in the industry. The tour is a hands-on learning tour. We will assign you to a car with three or four others, including someone who has wheat field experience. We will follow our long term routes, and use yield formulas supplied by USDA/NASS. You will be making 12-15 field stops per day. We will eat together each night and I will reassign you to a different car each day. Each car will give a report of their daily findings, and data from past years will be distributed to the group. This training and mentoring opportunity is an extremely good value for the fundamental wheat industry knowledge that a person can acquire in just three short days. Encourage others from your organization or fraternal organizations to join you. A better educated wheat industry is beneficial to all of us. We are typically representing the entire wheat value chain: seed growers, producers and producer organizations, university, media, grain companies, flour millers, end users and many allied companies. Three goals as always for the tour; industry interaction, describe current crop prospects, and provide exposure to US agriculture and the States we visit.

- ◆ Complete the registration form and send it back prior to the dates listed to ensure that motel rooms will be available.
- ◆ Let me know if you can drive. The spring wheat tour info is currently available on the website.

The registration forms are also on our web site. www.wheatqualitycouncil.org

Hope to see you on the tours.
